The statements below were submitted via anonymous end-of-term course evaluations in courses I developed and taught, per the notation.

"The course work accurately assessed what we have learned in the course. The work load each week usually was not too overwhelming."

"Feedback, feedback, feedback. This course was the best course I have ever taken (online or traditional) on giving feedback. Not only did it provide good feedback, it provided it in a quick manner and that is crucial when trying to better yourself as a student. I have some courses that haven't given me grades or feedback on assignments I turned in a month ago and it's hard to know if you are doing what the professor expects of you if you don't hear from them. "I enjoyed the lectures. There was a lot of reading and I know I didnt comprehend it all. The video lectures helped me to highlight the important parts of the reading that the professor wanted us to be sure we understood."

"I thought this course was structured very well, blackboard was very easy to use in this class the teacher did not make it confusing."

"I like how organized everything was and that instructions on how to do special assignments were posted as well."

"This course was extremely informative and was well worth the hours that I poured into it. There are some classes that seem to be a filler and don't challenge you, however, this course was very challenging but it helped to make me more determined to complete it successfully. I found the content that was covered very interesting and applicable to the real world, so this helped me to think critically and also helped me to remain focused on each of the assignments. It was easy to stay on track with assignments and their due dates because everything was outlined in much detail and announcements were given routinely, which helped to prepare for upcoming assignments. I absolutely loved the course and will certainly recommend it to others."

"I LOVE the organization of this class. Everything the professor expected from me was VERY clearly stated in the syllabus and the weekly overviews. Knowing the expectations kept me on task and kept me organized, and in turn allowed me to thrive as a student. I believe this was mostly why I am doing well in this course. The topics are very interesting and the teacher has excellent supplements to go with the text being discussed for the week. I still cannot believe what is going on in the water industry. All of the topics were moving... so much that I've shared the knowledge with my husband and friends. I've always been interested in sociology and if I wasn't graduating this semester, I'd pursue a major in sociology, rather than a minor."

"I liked that the work load was not just busy work it was all relevant. I also liked that the teacher was willing to help out when asked."

"I thought the lectures were very helpful. I am taking one other online course and there are no videos or discussion amongst the students. I have liked this aspect of this course and wish other instructors offered the same."

"The course was well structured and easy to navigate. I'm taking numerous online courses this semester and I found this one to be easiest to use. Everything was organized and that makes it easy to stay on track."

"The text was easy to read and understand and the video lectures were informative and helpful. The assignments were good at putting into practice the concepts that we learned. My perspective of this class was a cynical one when the class began but my opinion has been changed and I feel this class has truly improved me. Professor Myer's gave great personal examples and made to concepts understandable. The response pieces helped apply the knowledge as well as the VLOG/BLOG."

"I was never confused on how to do something or where to go to find something. The text was explained well and everything I needed to do was clearly stated at all times. Overall the course was very interesting and I learned a lot."

COM 318 Spring 2012 Indiana University-Purdue University Fort Wayne

"I liked having an overview for each week with a full description of the assignments and how long it will take to complete all assignments."

"I feel like I was getting a virtual classroom from this course."

"Professor Myers made the topic very interesting by choosing supplemental materials that were relevant to how we experience persuasion in the real world. The supplemental videos, reading materials, and group discussion topics were very insightful and thought-provoking."

"Loved this class! One of my favorites for sure. Challenging but learned a lot. Design of course well thought out and planned."
